NCAA DIVISION III
MEN'S TENNIS
CHAMPIONSHIPS

• MAY 11-17, 1987 •

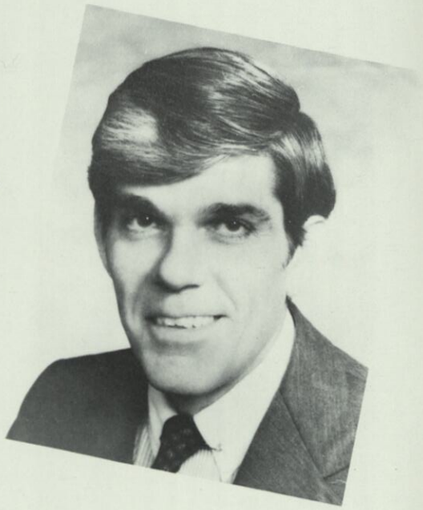
Salisbury State College

Welcome to Salisbury State College! We are pleased to have been selected as the host campus for the 1987 NCAA Division III National Men's Tennis Championships.

With 18 intercollegiate sports here at Salisbury State College, our emphasis on participatory athletics is well documented. Equally important, we are fortunate to have not only a highly competent group of educators to motivate and teach our student-athletes but truly outstanding facilities where they are able to train and compete. As such, that segment of the college community possessing outstanding athletic skills and a personal dedication to success on the playing field is able to achieve significant individual and team oriented goals.

We have a rich tradition of excellent tennis being played at Salisbury State and we are sure that tradition will be maintained throughout this year's championship.

Sincere best wishes for a successful tournament.



Thomas E. Bellavance
President
Salisbury State College

We are delighted to be hosting the 1987 NCAA Division III Tennis Championships. We welcome players, coaches, and officials to our campus and to the Salisbury community.

Our community on the Eastern Shore of Maryland is unique. The rural farming and marsh lands offer scenic settings and interesting glipmses of native wild life. The nearby beach and Chesapeake Bay afford both peaceful relaxation and fun-filled activities. Avail yourselves to these beautiful environmental attractions during your visit. It is our wish that your brief stay in Salisbury will be enjoyable and rewarding.

As we gather to test our skills in competition, may we do our very best and know, regardless of the outcome, that our selection to this tournament already exemplifies our dedication and commitment to successful tennis experiences.

Congratulations on your selection to this prestigious event! Please have a wonderful time and enjoy our warm hospitality during your stay.

Be a friend...

For some student-athletes, the commitment to excellence reaches beyond academic and athletic competition.

For many adolescents, junior high school is a time of loneliness, low self-esteem and insecurity.

Each week, in communities all across the country, college student-athletes and junior high school-aged youth are building special one-to-one friendships through the NCAA Volunteers For Youth program.

Designed to provide positive role models for youngsters who are having a tough time at school, at home or with friends, the Volunteers For Youth provides benefits to the participating student-athlete as well. Many VFY volunteers report that their commitment to school and their sport is enhanced by the relationship they have developed with their VFY youth.

"We are pleased with the VFY's progress, particularly since it started as a pilot program," said Cecil N. Coleman, chair of the NCAA Volunteers For Youth Committee. "There were 1,500 matches of student-athletes and young people last year and we hope that will increase in 1985-86."

Those 1,500 matches produced at least a few success stories. A Morehouse College football player worked with one youth for four years. The youth went from being "the classic underachiever" to "an honor-roll student and a good athlete who hopes to attend college," his college buddy proudly recalls.

The VFY was originated as the Youth Program at Stanford University in 1969. In 1977, the NCAA committed itself to sponsoring the program with financial support for the national staff. Currently, 58 colleges participate in the VFY national organization. Each campus chapter is student-run, supported by the national staff and sponsored by the NCAA and the institution's athletic department.

For more information about the NCAA Volunteers For Youth Program, contact Audrey West, NCAA Volunteers For Youth, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201.

What is the NCAA?

The question could be answered simply by saying "National Collegiate Athletic Association," but in reality the NCAA is much more than four words beginning with the letters N-C-A-A.

It is also much more than a staff working in Mission, Kansas, on administrative details of America's intercollegiate athletics programs.

To say that the NCAA is a staff or a group of people is to misunderstand not only what the NCAA is, but what its goals and objectives are. It is to misunderstand its very reason for being.

In reality, the NCAA is composed of nearly 1,000 colleges and universities across the United States. The NCAA, in its truest sense, is every member institution working together for the common good of all. It is democracy in action. All rules, all policies, all procedures, even the directions and goals of the NCAA are determined by the colleges and universities working and voting together in a common body.

Working together, these institutions of higher learning provide America's young athletes with an opportunity to "be as good as they can be" in the classroom and in the athletics arena.

Today's college athlete is a student first and an athlete second, a student-athlete. Through their common association of NCAA membership, our nation's colleges and universities work to ensure the academic integrity of all their programs.

As with any organization made up of individuals or member institutions, the requirements in any given area, be it academic or enforcement, are continually changing in response to the desires of the membership, but the goal is always the same—a sound mind, a sound body, a spirit that is unafraid and a clean sports program that develops those qualities individually, institutionally and nationally.

Perhaps no area of the NCAA comes under more inspection than the enforcement program. Yet, even there, the NCAA is responsive to the needs and concerns of the individual institutions working together for what they perceive to be the common good. The colleges and universities make the rules. The NCAA staff, working under the direction of the colleges and universities, enforce the rules.

When a school runs afoul of the "NCAA rules," it had best remember the now infamous words of the cartoon character Pogo, "We have met the enemy and he is us..."

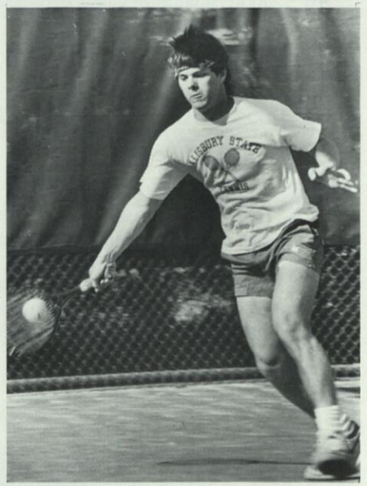
Just as integrity is the key to an academic program, it also is vital to healthy competition between NCAA member institutions. The colleges and universities seek to create an atmosphere in which all institutions have an equal chance to recruit America's outstanding student-athletes. It is then up to member schools to help the individual student-athletes be as good as they can be, both in the classroom and in their athletic endeavors.

For all of the attention it receives, the enforcement program is but one small part of the NCAA's total concern. The NCAA administers 74 championships in three divisions in 21 sports. More than 15,000 men and women student-athletes compete annually in these events, designed to determine the national champion.

The NCAA also sponsors one of America's foremost honors programs, which is designed to recognize yesterday's and today's top athletes and the contributions of intercollegiate athletics as a whole to the country and society.

It has been said, and rightfully so, that sport is but a microcosm of society. Never before has it been more true, for sport and for the NCAA.

However, the goal of the NCAA is still the same—America's colleges and universities working together for the common good of higher education, and the young men and women who study and compete for NCAA member institutions.



NCAA DIVISION III TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIPS

Nestled in one of the nations's most magical and historical areas, the Eastern Shore of Maryland, Salisbury State College effectively combines the relaxed yet personable nature of a small college education with the rigorous academic demands of a major university.

The recreational pursuits of the Eastern Shore are legendary, from the boardwalk of Ocean City to the wilderness of Chincoteague Island to the tranquility of Blackwater Refuge near Cambridge, Md. Only 30 miles to the east is Ocean City's famous white beach and the 30 miles of Assateague Island's National and State Park.

Salisbury, Wicomico's county seat and the Shore's major city today, was laid out by a charter granted in 1732, the year George Washington was born.

The College offers undergraduate programs leading to the Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degrees, and graduate programs leading to the Master of Arts in English, History and Psychology, the Master of Education, and the Master of Business Administration.

Salisbury State's undergraduate program became more defined in 1984 with the alignment of the College's major programs into five distinct schools of learning: the School of Nursing and Health Sciences; the School of Business; the School of Liberal Arts; the School of Professional Studies, and the School of Science.

The Salisbury State athletic program is a comprehensive program, offering participation in 18 intercollegiate sports at the NCAA Division III level. In all, nine sports are offered for participation by male students and nine for participation by female students.

In addition, the College offers sports at the club and intramural level with a wide range of activities through the Office of Intramural and Recreational Sports.
